

Read 'Em and Reap!

Evangelical Christian Book Reviews
Hebrews 5:14

Feed My Sheep: A Passionate Plea for Preaching
Expository preaching has fallen on hard times lately. It seems that pastors are more satisfied with preaching topics drawn from a variety of Scriptures that say what they want to present without doing the hard work of exegesis. Though topical preaching has its place and can be very useful, a steady diet of it will leave a congregation without a solid foundation of all that Scripture has to offer. Expository preaching, on the other hand, seeks to present the 'whole counsel of God'(Acts. 20:27). Pastors are forced to deal with the hard passages when they arise rather than being able to pick and choose the subjects.

In Feed My Sheep: A Passionate Plea for Preaching, eleven of the most well known expositors of our time have issued a call for pastors to return to preaching the Word. As the back cover says, "Biblical preaching is nearing extermination in our day. There is 'sharing,' 'suggesting,' plenty of storytelling, and lots of preaching to 'felt needs.'...Too often, those who have been called to feed Christ's sheep do little more than pet them instead of feeding them with the Word of God."

Included in this collection of essays is:

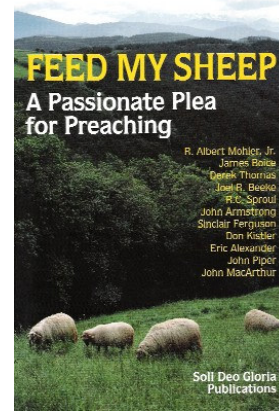

Al Mohler.....	The Primacy of Preaching
James Montgomery Boice.....	The Foolishness of Preaching
Derek Thomas.....	Expository Preaching
Joel R. Beeke.....	Experiential Preaching
R.C. Sproul.....	The Teaching Preacher
John Armstrong.....	Preaching to the Mind
Sinclair B. Ferguson.....	Preaching to the Heart
Don Kistler.....	Preaching and Authority
Eric Alexander.....	Evangelistic Preaching
John Piper.....	Preaching to Suffering People
John MacArthur.....	A Reminder to Shepherds

Technically, this book was written for pastors, calling them back to authoritative, biblical, expository preaching. However, the benefits of reading it will extend to the layperson as well. Today, too many people think the shallow, fluffy, "felt needs" kind of topical babble they receive each Sunday is real preaching. This book will shed some light on what real preaching should look like and equip laypersons to seek out that which will truly present the whole counsel of God. Read 'em & Reap!

For more information and reviews, visit www.readnreap.net

Read 'Em and Reap!

Evangelical Christian Book Reviews
Hebrews 5:14

Feed My Sheep: A Passionate Plea for Preaching
Expository preaching has fallen on hard times lately. It seems that pastors are more satisfied with preaching topics drawn from a variety of Scriptures that say what they want to present without doing the hard work of exegesis. Though topical preaching has its place and can be very useful, a steady diet of it will leave a congregation without a solid foundation of all that Scripture has to offer. Expository preaching, on the other hand, seeks to present the 'whole counsel of God'(Acts. 20:27). Pastors are forced to deal with the hard passages when they arise rather than being able to pick and choose the subjects.

In Feed My Sheep: A Passionate Plea for Preaching, eleven of the most well known expositors of our time have issued a call for pastors to return to preaching the Word. As the back cover says, "Biblical preaching is nearing extermination in our day. There is 'sharing,' 'suggesting,' plenty of storytelling, and lots of preaching to 'felt needs.'...Too often, those who have been called to feed Christ's sheep do little more than pet them instead of feeding them with the Word of God."

Included in this collection of essays is:

Al Mohler.....	The Primacy of Preaching
James Montgomery Boice.....	The Foolishness of Preaching
Derek Thomas.....	Expository Preaching
Joel R. Beeke.....	Experiential Preaching
R.C. Sproul.....	The Teaching Preacher
John Armstrong.....	Preaching to the Mind
Sinclair B. Ferguson.....	Preaching to the Heart
Don Kistler.....	Preaching and Authority
Eric Alexander.....	Evangelistic Preaching
John Piper.....	Preaching to Suffering People
John MacArthur.....	A Reminder to Shepherds

Technically, this book was written for pastors, calling them back to authoritative, biblical, expository preaching. However, the benefits of reading it will extend to the layperson as well. Today, too many people think the shallow, fluffy, "felt needs" kind of topical babble they receive each Sunday is real preaching. This book will shed some light on what real preaching should look like and equip laypersons to seek out that which will truly present the whole counsel of God. Read 'em & Reap!

For more information and reviews, visit www.readnreap.net